

Our Indian War.

The Enreka Sentinel gives the following about the actions of soldiers who were going to slaughter Indians. We forbear comment:

Soldiers with fixed bayonets began to capture animals right and left, and with a total disregard of the wishes of the owners. Saddle horses, team horses, mules, any and everything, was confiscated on the spot. Sweeney turned out some forty head, and the rest of the livery men were compelled to contribute with equal liberality. Walter B. Harrib surrounded several fine animals, as also did Mr. Fisk, agent of the freight and stage line. Persons who had saddles, guns or pistols, now or old, were also called on in a similar manner. These proceedings toward the last, when some of the brave boys had got more "Keeler motor" aboard than they could well stand, were not conducted with a great deal of decorum, and, in fact, it may be said that the whole force were pretty badly demoralized, some of them at least prosecuting a spectacle more nearly approaching an irresponsible mob than regularly organized militia of the great "Battle-born State." Receipts were given in most instances for everything taken, and we presume the State will foot the bills, but it may be, and we think it quite likely that it will be, a year or more before the cash is forthcoming. We are not positive about it. From one of the men who got disengaged and turned back we learn that this last detachment behaved outrageously at all of the places along the road. They not only pressed in all the horses they met with, but some of rushed pell mell into houses, presenting their pistols and guns and frightening women and children out of their wits. At the Italian ranch everything in the shape of provisions was forcibly taken, and besides two work horses belonging to Sweeney, were seized and taken off. Considering that Sweeney had already given up nearly all he possessed, this last act may be classed as spreading it on a little thick, to say nothing worse. On getting word of what had occurred Sweeney "heeled" himself and started in pursuit, but with what result we are not yet advised. The great majority of our soldiers are good men, but it can not be denied that Wednesday's proceedings also developed some pretty rough elements.

ELKO WEEKLY POST.—We acknowledge the receipt of the initial number of the Elko Weekly Post, a new candidate for favors in Eastern Nevada. The Post is to be published every Saturday, by E. A. Littlefield & Co. Judging from the first number the Post promises to be a faithful representative exponent of the mining, agricultural and grazing interests of Elko county, for the first issue contains more information about Elko and Elko county, than we have seen in any paper for many a year. Typographically the Post is a model country newspaper, comparing favorably with the metropolitan press. And in every other respect it is a credit to Elko, and we feel assured that the liberal minded business men of that section will extend it a generous support, as they appear to have done on the start. Littlefield knows how to run a newspaper, and we are glad his lines have fallen in pleasant places.

In New York, Saturday, the Republican nominated the following State ticket: For Secretary of State, Fred. W. Seward; Comptroller, Gen. T. E. Spinnor; Treasurer, Gen. E. A. Merrill; Attorney General, Geo. L. Binford; State Engineer, O. H. X. Cornell; Canal Commissioner, W. E. Findlay; State Prison Inspector, Rev. B. T. Ives.

POPULATION.—The census returns of the County Assessor of Lander county shows a total population of 2,375, distributed as follows: Austin and vicinity, 1,449; Battle Mountain, 306; Odeon, 120. To this must be added at least 300 whose names were not taken by the Assessor, owing to their having been enrolled in the census of other counties prior to their arrival in Lander county.

"OLD GAZE," who was confined in the State Prison at Carson, for killing one Wilcox in Virginia City a year ago, died last Thursday. He was 70 years old.

We are greatly obliged to that very sprightly and wide-awake morning paper, the San Francisco Ledger, for the following history of the much-talked-of Guibord Case:

Our dispatches for about a week past have furnished accounts of the unfortunate troubles in Montreal over the burial of Joseph Guibord, and the latest advices indicate that there is a prospect of the controversy involving other portions of the Dominion in riot and bloodshed. As it is some time since the matter has been brought prominently before the public, a brief resume of the facts connected with case will be interesting: Guibord, who died in November, 1869, had been the owner of a lot in the Catholic cemetery, but the Institute Canadian, of which he was a member, had been denounced by the Bishop of Montreal for refusing to remove certain objectionable books from its library. When Guibord died his body was refused burial in the Catholic cemetery, and his widow applied to the courts for relief. The Canadian Courts decided variously, each party when beaten appealing to a higher tribunal. In the meantime Madame Guibord died, leaving all her property to the Institute. That association carried the case to the Privy Council of England, and has finally obtained a decree ordering the burial of the body in the cemetery, and also judgment against the church authorities and in favor of the Institute for all costs incurred by the widow in the lower Courts, which amount to a very large sum. Whether these costs have been paid is not stated. But the first attempt to inter the remains, on 2d instant, was, as our readers will remember, prevented by force, a large crowd of French Canadians having assembled for that purpose. Another attempt will be made on the 17th, and will probably be successful, as a large body of troops will be on hand to protect the funeral cortege. The feeling in the city among French Catholics, who form a majority of the population, has been wrought up to such a height, however, that there is little hope of the remains being allowed to rest in peace, even after burial. It is an affair greatly to be deplored, and there is no telling where it will end.

THE LAW OF THE CASE.—Stippler got home about 1 A. M. He was hanging the pillar of the porch, and Mrs. Stippler was standing in the door, her scant drapery shivering in the breeze.

"Is this here my 'ouse?" said the limber Mr. Stippler.
"Yes, it is, you brute!" snapped out his wife.
"All right, my love (hie); I take your word for it! Hear it (hie), ye stars, and be (hie) my witnesses!"
"Come in you old fool!" she said.
"If this here's my house (hie), my love, you jist don't forget (hie) it! A man by the laws of this here land, can't be (hie) tacked in his own house—ye hear (hie) that? That's law old gal!"

And then Mrs. Stippler stepped out and interviewed Stippler, and the way in which she expounded a "higher law" to him was something he won't forget until Plantation's comet strikes the earth.

One of our subscribers, an elderly lady, wants to know if we won't write something about tobacco, she being very much against the use of the noxious weed. Certainly we will. Everybody is aware that the use of this vile article is most injurious, destroying the vital powers, and filling lunatic asylums and graves. It is frightful to contemplate the ravages of the tobacco poison. Would that we wielded the pen of a Dickens, that we might vividly portray the evil effect of the weed. Thousands of persons have—A friend has just dropped in and offered us a cigar, and it looks like a good one we won't write any more at just at present.—Rockland Courier.

SICK.—J. W. Rover, now confined in the Humboldt County Jail under sentence of death, has been seriously ill for several days. The hearing of his case in the Supreme Court is set for next Monday, at which time it will be determined whether he shall have a new trial or suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

The sidewalk in front of Flood & O'Brien's Nevada Block, San Francisco, cost $13,000. Some of the flags are 7 by 14 feet, some 4 by 9, and all are from 6 to 8 inches thick. The freight on them from New York was two cents a pound. That sidewalk ought to last two or three years at the least.

POOR PAY.—Frank Yates, a disgusted and disappointed miner, has arrived at Cheyenne from the Black Hills. He exhibits $8 20 in gold dust, and says it was washed by three men in fifteen days.

The remains of Gen. John C. Breckinridge have been removed from the vault where they were placed at the time of his funeral and buried in the Lexington, Kentucky, cemetery.

The confident prediction of so old and intelligent a statesman as Hon. Alex. H. Stephens that the next President of the United States will be a journalist, suggests an inquiry as to how the different professions have fared in the past distribution of that honor. A hasty review of the list will be found to result as follows: Washington was a soldier. Adams was a lawyer. Jefferson was a lawyer. Madison was a statesman. Monroe was a lawyer. John Quincy Adams was a lawyer. Jackson was a soldier. Van Buren was a lawyer. Harrison was a soldier. Tyler was a lawyer. Polk was a lawyer. Taylor was a soldier. Fillmore was a lawyer. Pierce was a lawyer. Buchanan was a lawyer. Lincoln was a lawyer. Johnson was a lawyer. Grant was a soldier.

It is true that Jackson was a lawyer as well as a soldier—a judge as well as a general—but it was his career as a fighter that made him President, he is credited to that profession. So Pierce was a Brigadier General in the Mexican war; but he didn't distinguish himself peculiarly as a warrior, so we apply to him the correlative of the proposition that we applied to his great Democratic predecessor. It should be explained with respect to Madison that he studied law, but seems to have been drawn into public life too soon to make any progress in the practice.—Minneapolis Sentinel.

"Figures will lie," said a young married friend to our reporter this morning, "and don't you bet on the figure of a woman until you know by actual observation just what you have to sustain your judgment. Yes, sir I know that figures will lie."

EVERYTHING is Centennial nowadays, you know, but a Delaware mother is rather ahead of the average in bringing out the "Centennial spank." It means a spanking which will last a boy one hundred years.

A CINCINNATI excursion was broken up and indefinitely postponed by the instructions given in writing to the ticket agent. "Sell no tickets to d—d fools," was the brief sentence, and he rejected all applications on general principles.

STRAWBERRIES are in market in Marysville, Cal. Think of that and weep, ye Eastern freeze-out players.

A Ralston memorial meeting will be held in New York City Monday night.

JOHN SUNDERLAND STILL AHEAD.—John Sunderland has just returned from San Francisco with the largest and best selected stock of boots and shoes ever brought to Reno. He has goods to suit all prices and all people. He has a fine assortment of children's school shoes, which give more satisfaction than any shoe ever brought to this town. He is selling boots and shoes at panic prices. Call at his store and examine for yourself. He has also on hand and for sale, a fine assortment of shoemaker's findings, which he offers to the trade at a small advance over San Francisco prices.
